Boxing Fans Offered Two Exceptionally Good Cards

Johnnie Walsh Promotes Card at Innisfree, October 28th
—Local Pugilistic Adherents Will See Curly Kid and Young Venstob 'Go' November 11th

(From the Viking News)

BOXING SHOW AT INNISFREE
Johnnie Walsh, boxing impresario, promoter and heavyweight mitt artist, called at this office on Saturday and made the announcement that he is staging a real honest-to-goodness boxing programme at the Innisfree town hall, on Saturday October 28th, commencing at 8 o'clock in the evening. He left an order for posters announcing the event, and our job department immediately got busy and had these ready for him in a few hours.

The feature bout of the evening is for the heavyweight championship of Alberta in which Johnnie Walsh will meet Emile Van Velzen over the ten round rope. Van Velzen turned professional in 1928 after holding the amateur heavy-weight title and has lost a bout since. He has a tough customer to beat in the person of Walsh who won his last two bouts, a knockout over Lukens of Irma and a ten round decision over Johnnie Johansson.

The semi-final will be fought by "Windmill" Bud Atkins, and "Dynamite" Joe Caldwell, Innisfree boys, who are billed to go six rounds. Four other preliminary events round a neat looking program. Mike Kaplansky, of Edmonton, will be the third man in the ring for all events.

Ringside and reserve seats are priced at $1.00; rush at 75c. Be at Innisfree for the big doings, fans, on October 28th.

THE PROGRAMME AT VIKING

The big news for boxing fans in this part of the world is that Curly Kid, of Irma, and Young Venstob, of Viking, have signed articles to box a ten-round main go here at the Elks' auditorium, on Saturday, November 11th, the festive festivities to start at eight bells. This match in itself is going to create sufficient interest to fill the hall to overflowing, but there is lots more doing besides this.

As a semi-final attraction, which is worth a main go on any up-to-the-minute boxing program, is the fact that George Scott, of Viking, and Mickey Dolan, of Chauvin, are mixing it in a six rounder. These past-masters of the manly art were to have met at Ryley last summer, but there was a hitch in the proceedings, and the boys have rested instead.

In addition, there will be some snappy preliminary settees that will put everybody in good humor for the finals. On the whole the program will have all the earmarks of big-time stuff, and there's a hundred or two fans already made up their minds and put away the odd shkel so as to be sure to be on hand and sit in on the best boxing program held here in many a dark moon. More anon.

UNITED CHURCH NOTES

The services next Sunday will be at Albert, Alma Mater and Irma at the usual hours. The topic of the sermon will be, "Taking the Measure of Life." Everyone is cordially invited.

Our Roseberry friends are reminded that services in the Roseberry school house will begin with the last Sunday in October at 3 p.m. Please pass this information around so that we may make a good start.

We are considering taking teams from town to visit the country points so as to promote the work of the Kingdom of God. No definite announcement can be made as yet, but we are anxious to pass on the inspiration we have received from the visit of the team from Edmonton in connection with the Oxford Group Movement.

There will be a short meeting of the congregation after the evening service next Sunday, to consider matters relating to the anniversary.

LADIES' AID MEETING

The October meeting of the Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Tripp, with 11 members and two visitors present. The treasurer reported a balance of $4.05 on hand. A bill for furnace pipe was presented and ordered paid.

The names of Mrs. Fenton and Mrs. Tripp were added to supper committee for hazaar supper. It was decided not to canvass for supper material, but hope that all members and friends would help in their usual generous manner. Supper menu to include cold meats, hot potatoes, baked beans, salads, pickles, rolls, pies, etc. The usual price of 25c and 15c was decided on.

It was moved by Mrs. Fenton and seconded by Mrs. Carter, that as much of the hazaar material as possible be turned in to Mrs. Tripp's for marking by Thursday, the 28th inst.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Geeson on the second Thursday in November.

Here and There

It is corn roast time in Canada, one of the two principal outdoor festivals in the Dominion with which the passing of the years does not seem to interfere. The other is "caulking off" at maple sugar time in the early days of spring.

Canadian Pacific Railway experimental farm at Calgary took honors in the sheep judging at the Canadian Pacific Exhibition held recently at Vancouver with two firsts in each of the rams, ewes and pens classes, five seconds and the grand champion Suffolk ram and ewe champion.

Keeping well in the forefront of the sporting world in Canada, the Seignior Club, Montebello, Quebec, has recently staged a women's golf tournament and has followed this up by the tournament of the Canadian Senior Golfers Association. Both were well patronized, the latter drawing a big and prominent entry from the United States.

The world's valuable deposits of coal and iron lie with the Atlantic nations rather than with those who front on the Pacific, the discussions of the fifth biennial conference of the Pacific Relations Institute held recently at the Banff Springs Hotel, revealed. The fact enters largely into the problems of the countries of the Pacific.

Bowel Complaints of Children During the Summer Months

Mothers should look well after their children during the hot summer months. Despite all they can do the children may be seized, at any time, with diarrhea, dysentery, summer complaint, or other forms of bowel trouble.

There is a safe remedy in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry; a remedy that has received the endorsement of legions of Canadian mothers during the 88 years it has been on the market. Political Schools

Hon. Vincent Massey, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada, started something when he adopted an idea which has been in operation in Great Britain for a number of years and inaugurated the Liberal Summer Conference held at Port Hope, Ontario, in September. Ontario Conservatives quickly grasped the same idea and followed with a Conservative Summer School at Newmarket. Neither of these gatherings were of a partizan character, nor were they held under the authority of the official party organizations. They were round table conferences for the study and frank discussion of political, economic and social problems. No decisions were formally recorded, nor were resolutions adopted.

Inasmuch as the Liberal Conference was a Dominion-wide gathering, while the Conservative School was an Ontario gathering, and further as the Liberal Conference had been promoted some considerable time in advance of its meeting, Mr. Massey was successful in securing the attendance not only of leaders in the political and economic life of Canada, but men of standing and influence in Great Britain and the United States, including Sir Herbert Samuel, leader of the British Liberal party, and Mr. Moley, the chief of the "Roosevelt" "brain trust." The Liberal Conference, therefore may be regarded as an indication of the character of these gatherings.

That conference was attended by many Conservatives and by supporters of the C.C.F., as well as by Liberals. Conservative views and Socialist views were just as freely expressed as Liberal views. As a matter of fact, the Liberal Conference and the Conservative School exchanged speakers, while men of Socialist views and leanings addressed both Conference and School. In a word, it was a coming together of men and women keenly interested in the current problems of the day as they affect Canada and the world of which Canada constitutes a part. They came together to study these problems, to obtain expert opinion in regard thereto, to examine and criticize suggested remedies and policies, and to frankly and freely exchange views thereon.

It was a school of citizenship in the highest and truest sense designed to engage some of the best thought of the country in a searching analysis of existing conditions and of suggested remedies designed to overcome the weaknesses and evils existing in our economic life and social order, and the part which governments must take in removing such evils and promoting the continued onward march of civilization and a progressive betterment in our whole standard of life and living.

So successful have these gatherings proved to be, that nothing but praise has been voiced by the press of Canada regardless of political affiliations. These conferences or schools are to be continued next year, and the probability is that such gatherings will be organized to be held in different sections of the Dominion in order that an opportunity may be afforded to a much larger number of earnest citizens to attend and participate in them.

Equally important—perhaps even more important—is another development arising out of these initial gatherings, and that is the formation in many centres across Canada of Discussion Clubs in which men and women deeply interested in public questions and matters affecting the public welfare are meeting and giving earnest heed and study to such matters.

Nothing but good can result from such study carried on quite apart from the partisan controversies and excitements of election campaigns. Speakers before such Discussion Clubs know that every word they utter will be fully weighed; that the facts they submit will be open to investigation; that the suggestions they advance will be minutely examined to determine their soundness, practicability and worth. Sincere pleading will be at a discount; emotionalism will not convince; but in the freedom of round table discussion, and in what might be termed the clash of intellects and authoritative opinion, knowledge will be advanced.

The inevitable result of such Schools and Discussion Clubs must be to raise the tone of public discussion in Canada. Political platforms of the future will have to be drafted to be something more than mere catchwords and devices; if they are not they will fail to impress and attract the voters. Members of Parliament and of the Legislatures will find it increasingly necessary to keep themselves well informed, fair and convincing in debate, rather than merely concerned in gaining some party advantage. There will be a more general recognition of the fact that politics, after all, is not something ignoble and to be shunned, but rather that politics is, in fact and reality, the science of government.

It is to be hoped that this movement for a better educated, more enlightened citizenship will spread far and wide throughout Canada; that it will be encouraged and promoted by all political parties and groups, and that people of every variety and shade of political and economic thought will gather together in earnest study and frank but friendly discussion of what, in the final analysis, are the common concerns of all, in which the interests of all are inextricably bound together.

Sir Percy Lake Makes Plea For Better Treatment Of Veterans

Promises of governments to soldiers they would not suffer when they returned to their homes hardly been fulfilled was the feeling among veterans, according to General Sir Percy Lake, of Victoria, en route home after attending the British Empire Service League conference in London.

Referring to placing jobless ex-servicemen in relief camps, Sir Percy said Saturday he thought these men should receive preferential treatment. The veterans should have a chance to make a little money so when they are out of work they would not be destitute on the streets, he added.

Secure Much Data

Scientists Return From Long Sojourn In The North

"Aurora borealis flashing directly overhead at Port Rae never came lower to the earth's surface than 55 miles distance" during their observations. Dr. J. M. Stagg, leader of the party of British scientists who have spent the last 13 months at Port Rae, North West Territories, studying northern weather conditions, made this statement.

Dr. Stagg flew from McMurray after coming out by river boat to superintend the transportation of some six tons of valuable instruments used by the scientists in their investigations. Five other members of the party came out some time ago.

Until the large volume of data gathered during the 13-month stay in the north had been studied it was impossible to state the result of their observations. Dr. Stagg said. Some 18 months would be required before the data could be placed in publishable form.

Engine Lights Attract Foxes

Animals Killed On Railway Tracks In Northern Manitoba

The engineer and fireman of Hudson Bay Railway locomotive No. 2133, have a novel way of capturing the elusive fox.

Running up from Wabowden to Gillam they ran over two of them, one a cross at Mile 268, and the other a red fox at Mile 296 a half hour later. They saw three others on the tracks, but these did not wait until the engine reached them.

When taking the freight from Gillam to Wabowden they ran over a third one. The animal, dazed by the headlights, stood bodily across one of the rails, staring at the oncoming train. This occurred at Mile 250.

The carcass, cut in two, was picked up the morning after by section men at work on the line. The fox was a cross with a handsome pet.

Lacharite says that at night the foxes come along the tracks in front of the train as far as one and two miles. The strong lights of the engine hold an attraction for them.

Discovered By Accident

Beautifully Painted Walls Of Egyptian Tomb Bared By Workmen

Beautifully painted walls, probably belonging to a Greco-Roman tomb of the first century, were bared by workmen who were levelling ground for a new football field at the Mustapha barracks for British forces just outside Alexandria, Egypt.

Only the arched gateway, constructed of well-pollished natural rock, was uncovered, but the antiquaries authorities believe the rest of the edifice is intact because it is in the highest quarter of the city where damage by sea infiltration is least likely. It is at the site of an ancient Roman camp.

A frieze of exquisitely carved human figures on horseback runs round the top of the wall.

Usually archaeological discoveries of Alexandria are of little importance because of the poor state of preservation. Ancient Alexandria was razed many times and because of the restricted space the new city was always constructed on the ruins of the old. However, stands apart from the city and local experts are basing great hopes on the latest discovery.

No Race Prejudices Influence Children

Boys And Girls On Montreal Playgrounds Mingle Agreeably

French, Polish, Ukrainian, Lithuanian and Russian children mix freely and gaily at the Hochelaga ward playground in Montreal, and whatever race prejudices there may be in the older generation finds no echo among these boys and girls, reports a woman supervisor.

"The team work among so many nationalities is something worth noting," she writes. "The spirit improves as the season progresses. The playground is truly appreciated in our district, as voiced by the children themselves. The parents are grateful too, but the differences of languages make it difficult for them to express their recognition. Actions, however, speak louder than words, and the fact the teacher is sent flowers, or vegetables from the garden, or Polish bread and victuals of different variety bespeaks thanks."

STEWED CUCUMBERS

Four large cucumbers; 1 teaspoon salt; 1/4 teaspoon pepper; 1 tablespoon butter; 1/2 cup sweetened condensed milk; 1 tablespoon flour; 1/4 teaspoon prepared mustard; juice of 1/2 lemon. Pare cucumbers and cut in slices 1/4 inch thick. Remove seeds from each slice. Place in boiling water and cook 15 minutes or until tender. Drain. Add salt, pepper and butter. Return to fire. Cover and cook for five minutes. Blend together sweetened condensed milk, flour, mustard and lemon juice. Add to cucumbers. Cook until mixture thickens, stirring constantly. Serve hot. Serves six.

Advocates More Production

Sir Herbert Samuel Out Of Sympathy With Present Policy

Increased world consumption of commodities, not decreased production, should be the aim. Rt. Hon. Sir Herbert Samuel told a Canadian Club luncheon audience at Ottawa. With the policy of decreased production he had no sympathy.

"Surely this is a mad policy," he said. "Statesmanship today is on the wrong lines." He indicated the path, which, he felt, would lead toward prosperity. Production should be encouraged, consumption stimulated, trade channels should be opened, currency stabilized and peace and tranquility developed.

Umbrellas Left On English Railway Trains Loaned To Passengers

The joke about the borrowed umbrella is a very ancient one, but the Southern Railway in England, is turning it to serious account. Thousands of umbrellas left by careless travellers come to a railway company in the source of a year. Arrangements are in hand whereby passengers on rainy days will be able to borrow these forgotten gamps at certain suburban stations on production of their season ticket and a payment of twopence.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful, falls in love with Peter Anson, fellow student in an art school. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, and he is a poor, struggling sculptor. On their first date Peter spends most of his money to show Camilla a good time, and then decides he must give her up because he cannot stand the financial pace. A chance meeting, however, paves the way for another date. This time they walk in the park. Camilla tells Peter that she is not rich; or, at least, will not inherit the Hoyt fortune. Peter in turn confesses he is practically penniless. They fall into each other's arms. Together, in the park, Peter and Camilla try to arrive at some plan for the future. Mrs. Hoyt, Camilla's foster mother, suspects from Camilla's actions that a romance is brewing. She is anxious to see Camilla wed wealth. Mrs. Hoyt immediately begins to question the girl about the interest Peter is showing her. She manages to be present on one occasion when Peter calls for Camilla, but the latter's clever stage management thwarts her plan. At a school party, Avis Werth, another wealthy art student, who is attracted to Peter, claims a dance with him, and in the meantime Camilla disappears. Peter had last seen her with Gus Matson, his roommate, whom he has befriended.

Now Go On With The Story

CHAPTER XIII.

When Peter first had admitted to Gus that he was serious about Camilla Hoyt, the latter had ridiculed his friend with jeering scorn. "Sure, if you want to land in the gutter, go ahead and fall for all the swell dames that cherish your handsome mug. Be a gigolo. Let some peevish pay your tailor and your barber and your hotel bills and lead you around by a gold-leash and collar. Go on, you're built just for that. Let us hear him who are not so good to look at, do the work of the world and make the honors."

"That'll do for you," Peter warned, half angry. "Whether or not I love Camilla and whether or not she has money, will not affect my work in the least."

"Oh, no? Well, I've seen that work-out. And it's a wash-out, always. Forget the love-slush, kid, and be a man."

"When you find love, you are a man," Peter said soberly. "You weren't one before, you have to be then."

"Say, what kinda true confession magazines have you been reading? I thought I was watchin' your habits better'n that!" he jeered.

To escape such tirades without an exhibition of anger, Peter had decided that if Gus knew Camilla, he would understand how serious he was about her. So he arranged for them to meet. The three had dined together one evening, in an obscure little restaurant on a side street where a bombastic sign in the window had promised, "All You Can Eat for 60c." Camilla had insisted upon going there when Peter suggested the dinner.

He had demurred.

"Where," she demanded, "would you and Gus have dinner, if you were alone? Tell me the truth."

He met her eyes with an amused gleam. "Well, the best kind of place to take Gus is one where they advertise a flat rate. He's a smaller fellow, so he can eat his capacity for food is on the down and down."

"That is where we shall go then—to a flat-rate restaurant. You find one—or I shan't go anywhere with you."

That was that, and settled the matter. The walls of the restaurant, which they selected were of green tile decorated with a black frieze, instead of painted murals and tapestries. The music was of clattering nickel-silver on vitrolite tables and soprano voices of waitresses calling their orders to the cook.

"But what are you gonna do with her, kid? You can't afford a wife like that any more than you can own a Rolls-Royce or a yacht. The up-keep is about the same. Or do the car and the yacht go with her?"

"Not much. She goes with me."

"Yeah? Whither thou goest, I will go—that kind of hokey? Say, kid, he pushed his hands away with a gesture of disdain. "That's what they say until they get you. Then when they've slipped the collar and chain on, they make you do the followin' and take all the fancy steps they do, besides. Good-bye career, for you."

Peter did not enlighten Gus concerning Camilla's situation. That was her secret, and her private affair, anyway. So he ignored Gus's ridicule and dire prophecies, and avoided further references to Camilla as much as possible. The two had met subsequently in the routine of classes, and Gus had been able in his attentions to Camilla at tonight's reception.

The second time he danced with her, he remarked in a confidential tone, "You're pretty keen about Peter, I guess."

"Everyone likes Peter," she agreed. "Sure, swell guy. But I mean seriously, Miss Hoyt, you and Peter have things settled pretty well, I believe."

"Did Peter tell you?" surprised.

"No, but I have two eyes, two ears and a brain that works every other impulse or so," he grinned indulgently.

Camilla laughed. "Well?"

He sobered. "I didn't ask you that to be inquisitive. I had a reason, and a good one. I know things about Peter that I think it's my duty to tell you. For his good and your own."

Camilla looked up anxiously, with a little puzzled frown. "I shouldn't want to know anything about Peter that he didn't tell me, himself."

"Why not?" he demanded.

"Why—that wouldn't be fair to him, it seems to me."

"You're a queer one," he said. "That's when a woman can be the most help to a man, when she knows things about him he tries to keep from her. How about that, bluff night when he took you out and almost broke the bank tryin' to bluff you into thinkin' he was in your class?"

That was sufficient argument for Camilla. She never had overcom her chagrin over that episode. "Well, of course, anything like that," she admitted.

"Exactly what I mean," he declared.

"Why, if there is anything I can do to help Peter instead of hurting his chances, I'd like to know about it," she agreed.

"How about walkin' outside for the rest of the dance, while I tell you something, then, for your own good well as his?" Gus invited.

Camilla consented readily. They strolled toward the lilac hedge, which was no longer fragrant with panicles of bloom, but the night was sweet and warm with the promise of summer. "There are some benches around here, somewhere," he said. "We could sit down and rest while we talk."

Camilla knew well where the benches were, and located one easily. "Whew!" exclaimed Gus, "Society's not in my line. A little of that goes a long way with me. Of course," he amended in a lower voice, "it's different dancin' with a swell girl like you."

"Let's talk about Peter," she suggested quickly. "What do you think I should know about him, Mr. Matson?"

"So she doesn't want to hear about me, at all," he soliloquized. "I don't know. She wants to know about Peter. Aw' right, aw' right, baby, get a load of this. He announced abruptly in reply to her question, "That he's a cheat and a double-crosser!"

Camilla gasped, astonished to silence for a moment. "Why, how dare you say that about Peter?" she finally demanded.

"I dare to tell you because I'm too crazy about you myself to see you fooled by a slicker like him!"

Camilla stood up angrily. "I'll not listen to another word you have to say."

"Wait a minute," Gus pleaded in a kinder tone, "you'll be sorry as long as you live if you don't listen to me."

She hesitated. "Whether I listen to you or not, I shall not believe a word you say against Peter. So we'd better go back to the party."

"I'll take you back—when you've heard what I'm gonna say. Sit down, please Miss Hoyt. Her loyalty to Peter infuriated him, but he managed to appear calm and disinterested except in her welfare."

Camilla obeyed reluctantly, sitting rigidly on the edge of the bench, away from Gus and facing him, in an attitude of defense. She knew that Gus was not a gentleman. He was the kind of man whom no amount of culture could refine, no amount of training could develop even his talent. He scoffed at refinement and knew all there was to know, told the world, too, in no uncertain terms. She had tolerated him only for Peter's sake, who pitied him and believed that what he needed and deserved was a helping hand. Peter was so kind-hearted and glib, and it's was the way he was being repaid for his charity.

NEIGHBORS TALK

"I am employed in a theatre and it is a problem to make ends meet, as I help support my mother and sisters. I like to dress well but haven't got much to spend on clothes. To give the appearance of variety to my slender wardrobe I change the color of a dress or stockings as soon as the things become faded. I always use Diamond Dyes to the work—using them as dyes for dresses and as tints for stockings. I have always gotten such perfect results that our neighbors talk about the great number of 'new' things I have."

"I learned about Diamond Dyes from our wardrobe mistress. She says she has tried all the dyes on the market but none do such splendid work and are so easy to use as Diamond Dyes. I understand they are the world's most popular dyes—and they deserve to be."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

SUCH AS I HAVE

The poet quotes: "Silver and gold have I none; But such as I have I will give unto you." And he shows them the sunrise and setting sun. And the April sky with its rain-washed blue. He lifts up the veil from their listless eyes. To give them the glamour of sea and shore. He opens their ears to the four winds' sighs. And to the sirens' song through the breakers' roar.

"Of such as I have I will give," cries he. And he teaches the goodness which dwells unguessed. The spark divine which few eyes can see. That is glowing deep in the human breast.

Of patience and sacrifice he writes. Of the long endeavor, the starry goal. Until in the end his message lights. An answering gleam in each listening soul.

We met a summer bachelor the other day who declared he didn't leave a dish in the sink for weeks. Inquiry revealed that the sink being full, he piled them on the stove.

Chinese Have Advantage

Can Trace Ancestry Back Farther Than Any Other People

A little cable dispatch from China the other day emphasizes, as few news items ever do, the incredible age of the civilization of that mysterious land. It recorded the fact that a lady in Peiping can trace her ancestry directly back to old Confucius himself—and that she is his 77th lineal descendant.

Since Confucius was born in 551 B.C., the family is now a little less than 2,500 years old; and in the face of a record like that—it isn't altogether uncommon, either, in China—the most pretentious of western genealogies must look utterly insignificant.

To a person who can trace his family tree that far back, our pride in our ancestry must look rather odd. And even the proudest members of European nobility, who claim descent from Crusaders and what-not, must be, in the eyes of cultured Chinese, mere upstarts.

Sacrificed Perfume To Size

Growers Trying To Restore Fragrance To Sweet Peas

Since the first outcry against the scentless sweet pea, four or five years ago growers have been making every effort to recover the lost fragrance by crossing with the old-fashioned types. The difficulty is to retain the sweet scent without sacrificing the modern size of the blooms. There is hope that what rose growers have done sweet pea growers will do, and that we shall soon see the color and size of the modern pea flower no longer characteristics.

Little Helps For This Week

"Whoso putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe."—Proverbs 29:25. "I will cry unto God most high, unto God that performeth all things for me."—Psalm 57:2.

May all our restless hearts keep still, And wait in cheerful hope; content To take whatever His gracious will, His all-discerning love hath sent; Nor doubt our inmost wants are known.

To Him who chose us for His own. G. Neumark. God has brought us unto this time.

If we are not fit to cope with that which he has prepared for us, we should have been utterly unfit for our condition we imagine for ourselves. In this time we are to live and wrestle, and no other. Let us humbly look at it, and we shall not wish that the sun could go back its ten degrees, or that we could go back with it. If easy things have departed it is that the difficult time may make us in earnest; that they may teach us not to depend on ourselves. If easy belief is impossible, it is that we may learn what belief is, and in whom it is to be placed.—F. D. Maurice.

Girl Repairs Famous Clock

Accomplished Task Which Balked New York's Male Clockmakers

A twenty-year-old girl accomplished a task which had balked New York's best male clockmakers, and the Hotel Martini's famous, 300-year-old clock again is ticking after being silent for a week.

The girl, Miss Louise Weyer, of Astoria, I.L., read of the $20,000 clock's stopping for the first time since it was placed in the hotel's lobby in 1911, and of the absence from the city of the clockmaker who regularly tends it.

She volunteered her services, donned a smock and soon had the clock operating again.

GOODNESS, MARY—HOW CAN YOU RUB AND SCRUB EVERY BIT OF THAT STOVE TO BE DEAD.

BUT THERE'S NO RUB AND SCRUB TO IT. I USE GILLETT'S PURE FLAKE LYE AND WASH THE DIRT AWAY. NOTHING COULD BE EASIER.

LATER

BY THE WAY, MARY, I GOT A TIN OF GILLETT'S LYE AND IT'S FIRST-RATE. IT CERTAINLY DOES "EAT DIRT" NO MORE RUB AND SCRUB FOR ME!

Dirt washes off without scrubbing...

WITH Gillett's Pure Flake Lye you can actually wash the dirt away. Use a solution of 1 teaspoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in a quart of cold water. Off come stubborn spots and stains. No rubbing, no scrubbing needed.

Use Gillett's Lye whenever there's a heavy cleaning job to do—for greasy pots, the kitchen floor, sinks and bathtubs.

Gillett's Pure Flake Lye will not harm enamel or plumbing. Use it full strength for cleaning toilet bowls and clearing drains. It kills germs, and takes away odors, too. Order a tin today. At your grocer's.

* Never dissolve lye in hot water. The action of the lye itself heats the water.

Free Booklet

The Gillett's Lye Booklet tells you how to avoid dangerous by using this powerful cleanser and disinfectant for dozens of heavy cleaning jobs. Also contains full directions for soap making, disinfecting and other uses on the farm. Ask for free copy. Standard Brands Limited, Fraser Avenue & Liberty Street, Toronto, Ontario.

"I realize mother, that daddy is paid a lot to keep me in college, and that I must try and learn something," wrote a Holden girl who is going to college at Edmonton, to her mother, "and so I am learning to play tennis."

A young man at Vegreville had a strange experience recently that may or may not have strengthened his belief in dreams. His best girl lost a key around at a dance last week that they attended and its disappearance was a mystery. The young man dreamed twice in succession that the garment was hidden under the corner of an old barn. On informing his sweetheart of the occurrence she suggested that they at once investigate the merits of the dreams, and they at once proceeded to the place indicated. The young man knelt down, reached under the barn and sure enough his hands closed upon a furry substance and he attempted to drag it forth. His clothes have been buried since and he will not resume his place in society until the odor which clings to him becomes less noticeable.

"When that Killam fellow proposed to me I tried to not show the answer in my face" confided a young lady to a friend here, "but he was able to read my answer there." "Ah, read it between the lines, I suppose her friend replied.

This Is The Law Regarding Remembrance Day, Nov. 11

The following is the actual wording of the statute of the parliament of Canada setting aside November 11 in each year as REMEMBRANCE DAY.

His Majesty, by and with the consent of the Senate and the House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

"1. Sections Two and Three of the Armistice Day Act, Chapter 9, of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1927, are repealed, and the following is substituted therefor—

"2. Throughout Canada in each and every year, the Eleventh Day of November, being the day in the year One Thousand Nine Hundred and Eighteen on which the Great War was triumphantly concluded by an Armistice, shall be a holiday, and shall be kept and observed as such under the name of, REMEMBRANCE DAY."

Athadome Drilling Program Will Cost Seventy Thousand

A drilling program of 10 wells for the Athabasca district, involving an expenditure of around $70,000, is planned by the Athadome Oil Company, Limited, it was announced recently.

A short time ago this company resumed drilling at its well near Athabasca with the intention of exploring the top of the lime formation before bringing the well back to the Grand Rapids sandstone where oil was struck at a depth of 1,650 feet.

Reporting on oil struck at this well, Dr. J. O. G. Sanderson, well-known geologist, said in part:

"Tests have indicated a flow of from 20 to 30 barrels per day in the well from a coarse, loosely indurated uniform oil sand.

"This indicates clean oil in tremendous quantity and a field which should have a very long life. It is conservatively estimated that on a 15 percent recovery basis, there are recoverable from the company's holdings of more than 9,000 acres in the field, 7,000 barrels per acre on 9,000 acres, or 63,000,000 barrels," says the report.

"Isn't Miss — an awful sweet girl," remarked a young lady to a fellow at the dance here. "Well, she looks enough like a marshmallow with all of that powder over her face to be sweet," he replied.

Promises are apparently never too extravagant to attract public attention. We recall the promises of wealth to be acquired over-night that have never failed to draw money in to some wild scheme. Today, the public are apt to be beguiled by the promoters of various diets which promise an end to all troubles and a cure for all ills.

These faddy diets are usually presented in an attractive manner. Scientific facts are ignored or misrepresented. We are told, for example, that we should not mix carbohydrates (cereals and starches) with proteins (meats, fish and eggs). The promoters of this statement base their remarks upon the fact that the proteins are acted upon by the acid digestive fluids of the stomach, while the carbohydrates are digested by the alkaline juices of the mouth and the juice of the intestine.

There is no foundation for the idea that the presence of carbohydrates and proteins together in the mouth, stomach or intestine will interfere with the digestion of one or the other. Indeed, it is the acid of the food leaving the stomach which stimulates the work of the intestine.

Furthermore, the foods we eat are a mixture. Milk, which we rightly regard as the best single food we possess, contains about equal amounts of protein and carbohydrate. If it were true that these two substances should not be taken into the stomach at the same time, we should have to discontinue the breast-feeding of children and the use of milk.

There is no apparent reason why we should not eat, at the same meal, toast (carbohydrate) and eggs or meat (proteins) and potatoes (carbohydrate).

A Letter to Merchants.

The value of your local newspaper to the success of your business cannot be overestimated. It's worth all the support and co-operation you can give it. For the newspaper is a mirror reflecting the life of the community in which you and your store have an important part.

Your advertisement is the reflection of your store in this mirror. Everybody sees it there. If it is not there the mirror is dark where your store should be. You are there but you cannot be seen. Your store is open for business as usual, but "Out of sight, out of mind."

To keep in step with the progress of your community; to get your share of business, you must advertise regularly. Take your newspaper publisher into your confidence; he can give you invaluable assistance. Establish an advertising budget. Plan a regular schedule for your advertisements. It's a policy that is followed by the most successful stores; it's an idea that will be profitable for you—Stillwater Gazette.

The secretary of the ladies' aid society in a neighboring town entered a bank there and deposited some of the society's money remarking that it was "aid money." The cashier thought she said "egg money" and said: "The old hens done pretty well the past month, didn't they?" It became so chilly in the bank that the burglar proof glass cracked.

"How did all those empty beer bottles get into our basement?" asked a Tofted lady of her husband. "I don't know, my dear," he replied, "I've never bought an empty beer bottle in my life."

"What's the idea of painting your car all over again?" asked one neighbor of another here. "Well, you see, my wife says she must have a winter coat that will match the color of the car, so I'm painting the car the color of her old one," was the reply.
